Pha (pronounced 'pa') is short for Jirapha.

Pha's Thai food is her version of Thai food that has been passed down from her beloved mother and then shaped by Pha's life journey.

At age 13, Pha left her home town in rural North-East Thailand to provide for her family. Since this time, she has been cooking for small or large groups of people in some capacity.

In 1999 Pha came to Australia and in 2002 moved to Cooma. Although Pha's heart will always be in her village, Ban Fang in Khon Kaen Province, Cooma and its people have become an extension of her hometown. She takes great pride and pleasure in cooking for her extended family.

The logo for Pha's Thai is significant. In Thai culture, the two hands in the prayer position is a way to express respect and gratitude.

To Pha, the two hands have a deeper meaning of reverence towards one's mother for giving you life and the two hands with which you can work and create opportunity.

Saung Meu Mae in Thai translates as "two hands of the mother".

We thank you for joining us at Pha's Thai.
